

If you are thinking about carrying out building work to your house or flat, please remember that you may need:

- planning permission;
- building regulation approval (a separate type of council permission); or
- planning permission and building regulation approval.

Do I need planning permission for all building work?

You don't need planning permission for all building work. You can carry out some building work without needing to apply for planning permission. This is known as 'permitted development'. Your answers to the questions over the page will help you find out whether you need our permission to carry out the work you want to do.

Do I need building regulation approval for all building work?

You don't need building regulation approval for all building work. The questions over the page will help you find out if you need to apply for this type of permission.

Some kinds of building work always need approval. For example, removing chimney breasts, knocking two rooms into one, most re-roofing and all underpinning (supporting walls).

How can I find out if I need permission?

You need to answer the questions over the page. If you answer 'Yes' to any of these questions, you need to apply for planning permission or building regulation approval.

If you answer 'No' to all the questions, you probably don't need permission but you should phone the Planning Office to check. This leaflet is a general guide and does not cover every possibility. If you don't need permission, ask the Planning Office to confirm this in writing.

Listed buildings

If you live in a 'listed building', you need a separate permission called 'listed building consent'. You need this for any work that would affect the building's character, inside or outside the building. You will need this even if you don't need planning permission.

Other permissions

Depending on the work you want to carry out, you may need other permissions as well as planning permission and building regulation approval. Examples include the following.

- If you live in an ex-council house, you probably need permission from Housing Services to carry out the work. Please phone Housing on 01992 564000 to find out more.
- If you want to create a vehicle crossing, you must get in touch with the Highways team on 01992 564298.

You must make sure you have all the permissions you need before you start work.

Tell your neighbours

If you are planning to build within six metres of a boundary, you must speak to your neighbour about the Party Wall Act. We can let you have a booklet about this.

You should speak to your neighbours before you start any building work, whether or not you need permission. This can help sort out difficulties at an early stage and avoid problems later on.

This leaflet is one of a series that we have produced to give you advice about what permissions you need. It is for homes only. If you want to carry out building work to a business or agricultural building, please phone us for advice on 01992 564000.

If you want more information or want us to send you the application forms, please phone us on 01992 564000.

I want to build a driveway that leads onto the road

Planning permission

- You will need planning permission if you answer 'Yes' to any of the following questions.
- If you don't think you need permission for your driveway, you should ask the Development Control team for confirmation in writing or apply for a Certificate of Lawful Development.

1 Will the driveway be onto a classified road?

Classified roads include all roads that are named with a letter and numbers. For example, Chelmsford Road A414, High Road, Thornwood B1393, Sheering Road B183, Nazeing Road B194, other main routes and often country lanes. Please check with the Development Control team if you are not sure.

2 Will you build the driveway separately from any other work, such as a garage or hardstanding?

- Your driveway will only be 'permitted development' if it does not create any danger for people using the road.

Building regulations

You do not need building regulations approval.

Local Highway Authority

The Local Highway Authority must agree to build a crossing, even if you do not need planning permission. Please phone the Highways team on 01992 564298 to ask for their leaflet.
